

Olusegun Paul Andrew is a visual artist with over four decades of experience in Modern and Contemporary African Art. Paul's talent for painting was harnessed as a young artist in 1978 while participating with other young artists at Toki Memorial Arts Centre in Ibadan, the capital city of Oyo State, Nigeria. His abstractionist style of painting was majorly influenced by prominent artists in the likes of Tunde Odunlade and Tunrayo Onibonokuta, Jimoh Braimoh and Twin Seven Seven

Paul founded Zero Privé Gallery in Ikoyi in 2021. The gallery combines rich African culture married with tribal and native sentiments to confront modern trajectory in the art universe.

We don't know we are asleep until we are awake. An illustration of potentials surrounding a soul in slumber. It can also be referred to as "Potentials".

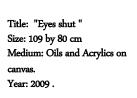

Title: " Lifeless occupants, the nest within " . Size: 128 by 107cm Medium: Acrylics on canvas. Year: 2023

Joy is not expensive. The third in a series of paintings where the dialogue/narration involves a bird nest.

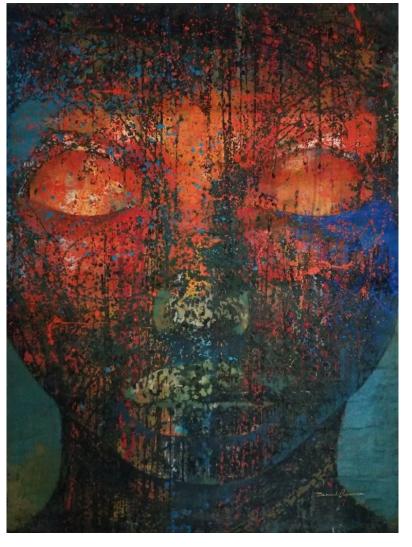

Even with my eyes shut i see you clearly.

One of my earlier drip painting, an emotional passport.

Title: Waiting for a Ceremony (detail: black pianist) Oil on canvas, Size: 3ft by 4ft Year: 2023

I ask Time whether I could return to the last station that we had passed, and she said; 'Honey, this train never goes back, however you once laid the track forwards from here, yourself. The next station was built by you! And then he narrowed his eyes, put his head on one side and breathed unpleasantly; 'But you can always leave the train. Its your choice.

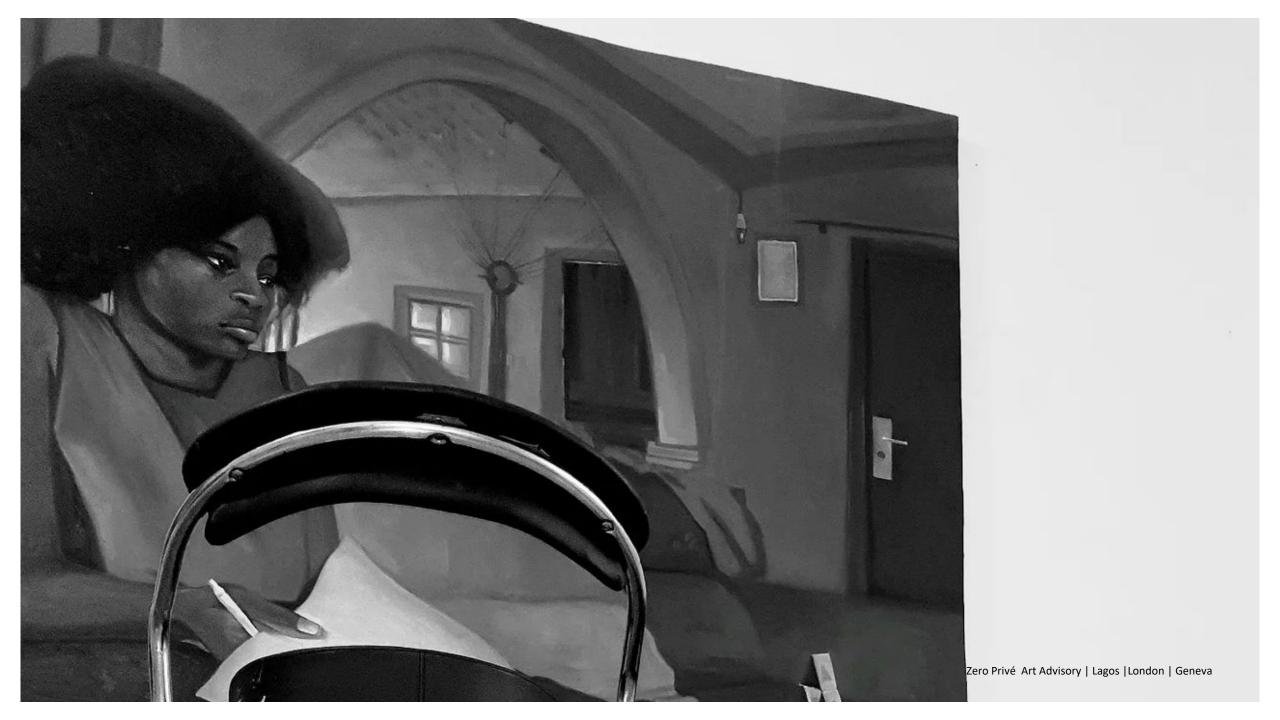

Title: Yesterday Future. (detail: the complicated lady), Medium: oil on canvas Year: 2023 6ft by 6ft.

"At what point do artist realize that their lives are a piece of performance art in which they have come to believe? Surely they would be the first to understand that great art is that which compels belief. Once created, we can no longer imagine the world without it. This suggests that if we begin to doubt our own life, we can take it back into the studio and rework it, reinvent it in a form that pleases us."

Titled: Blessure 5 (detail; the invented destiny) Medium; Oil on canvas Size: 5ft by 5ft Year: 2023.

Whatever we consider to be inevitable becomes our destiny, built by our own certainty. When this success and this diseases comes calling, this accident and this great windfall, we act surprised. We wring our hands or celebrate, and just behind the curtain we nod and nod, knowing and knowing, because we created it long ago and then lived towards it.

Title: COMPANION (I) A TALE OF TEAMWORK

Acrylic on Canvas

Size: 60 * 60 inches 152.4 * 152.4cm

Year: 2023

We were all created to serve one another, to fulfill various needs that range from friendship to romantic relationships. Sometimes, it can be as simple as being the person behind the camera, capturing the journey of someone's life. A true companion is the friend who persistently annoys you until a genuine smile breaks forth from your face. It goes beyond mere physical presence; it's about holding each other's hearts through our unconscious efforts. It could be teaching someone how to ride a bike or nurturing their creative spirit by priming a canvas or just blessing them with your presence.
